Specialist dedicated expert

BRC is dedicated to the UK's built environment sector, placing talented professionals and tradespeople with private practices, consultancies, contractors and local authorities.

We assess and fulfil demand for blue and white collar positions in M&E and building services, gas engineers, surveying, project and construction management, architecture and design, estates and facilities management, and energy and building regulations.

We also recruit for the support functions that these businesses rely on: human resources, accountancy and finance, marketing and PR, business development, procurement and tendering, IT support, customer service and administration support.

We apply a personal, honest approach to match hard-working, talented individuals to hard-working talented companies. We are committed to the belief that excellent recruiting outcomes can only be achieved upon a foundation of trust between ourselves and our clients and candidates, both in terms of expertise and in the way we conduct ourselves.

BRC was created in 1999 as the 'Building Recruitment Company'. We started out dedicated to the sector and we've remained dedicated to the sector. That focus propagates a culture of professional expertise and genuine enthusiasm that pervades throughout the business, ensuring junior members mature into experienced practitioners with a thorough understanding of both their market and their clients. It's a culture that also understands that long term relationships foster better results, creating a collaborative environment for us and crucially, continuity for our clients.

We don't pretend to be all things to all people – there's simply no way to maintain the high standards of service and results we set ourselves by following that route. We specialise where we have a proven track record and depth of insight and knowledge to offer, but we service that sector comprehensively, from graduate to mission-critical boardroom appointments.

Our offices are strategically placed across England and Wales to ensure we can tailor our services not only to individual clients but also with a regard to the region in which they work.

Our talent pool is tens-of-thousands strong and gains hundreds of new candidates each month, with individuals available for short and long term positions from all disciplines and at all levels of seniority. It's encouraging to know that the majority contact us following recommendations from clients and other candidates.

Our down-to-earth, open approach creates a hugely positive dynamic between ourselves, our clients and our candidates, in which we are happily relied on for our capability, respected for our experience and trusted to assess, manage and deliver the right people at the right time to serve our clients' business development goals.

Through consistent, diligent consultancy, we have established a reputation as a high quality provider and honest, principled partner.
